TAMIL NADU - INDIA

Azhiyar Park & Dam

Coimbatore

The second largest city of Tamil Nadu, Coimbatore, is one of the major industrial cities in Tamil Nadu. It is known as the textile capital of South India or the Manchester of the South. The city is situated on the banks of the River Noyyal. Coimbatore existed even prior to the 2nd century AD as the capital of a small tribal village, Kongunad, until it was brought under Chola control in the 2nd - 3rd century AD by Karikalan, the first of the early Cholas. Among its other great rulers were the Rashtrakutas, Chalukyas, Pandyas, Hoysalas and the Vijayanagara Kings. When Kongunad fell to the British along with the rest of the State, its name was changed to Coimbatore and it is by this name that it is known today. In Tamil, the city is called Kovai.

Located in the rain shadow region of the Western Ghats, Coimbatore enjoys a very pleasant climate all the year - round, aided by the fresh breeze that flows in through the 25 kms. long Palakkad gap. The rich black soil of the region has contributed to Coimbatore's flourishing agricultural industry. The flourishing growth of cotton has served as a foundation for the establishment of Coimbatore's famous textile industry. The first textile mill came up as far back as 1888 and there are now over a hundred mills. The result has been a strong economy and a reputation as one of the greatest industrial cities of South India.

Coimbatore serves as an entry and exit point to neighbouring Kerala and the ever popular hill station of Udhagamandalam (Ooty). It is the disembarking point for those who want to take the Mountain train that runs from Mettupalayam just 35 kms. from Coimbatore. There are also regular bus services from Coimbatore to Udhagamandalam, popularly known as Ooty.
